
GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS SOLUTIONS

As an experienced lobbyist and management consultant prior to founding pjmathison, Paul Mathison at his new firm brought sound business and ethical practices to the lobbying profession, rigorous technical analysis in support of clients' interests, and a pioneering focus on innovation and technology. Geographically, the firm originally concentrated on Pennsylvania-wide government matters. Staff members today also assist clients on matters in other states and at the federal level. Representative government affairs experience includes:

- $50 million over 10-years for science-technology scholarships to attract and retain college students and to re-train incumbent workers for “new economy” jobs.
- Federal enactment of the Violence Against Women Act and state legislation providing for registration & notification of released sex offenders (Megan’s Law).
- $9 million low-interest state government loan to support the construction of a $75 million pediatric research & development facility.
- Legislation to help tech companies compete more effectively, e.g., local tax relief for IT and life science ventures and the repeal of a state sales tax on IT services.
- State legislation providing for prison industry joint ventures with businesses.
- $2 million low-interest state government loan to retain a global human resource consulting firm’s headquarters facility in Pennsylvania.
- $10 million in federal, state and local government grants, loans, contracts, and other economic incentives for a renowned minority business accelerator.
- Annual six-figure state budget appropriations for a coalition of regional food banks.
- Procurement contract between a global telecommunications company and a state school employees’ retirement system serving more than 500,000 individuals.
- Federal government support for testing a start-up company’s innovative air-filter device on U.S. Postal Service trucks and other large pieces of equipment.
- Staff augmentation to a client’s existing government relations team; and advice and assistance on the creation of an altogether new government relations program.

For profiles of our work experience in other areas, please see www.pjmathison.com.